Nashville Children's Theatre: History and Mission

Nashville Children's Theatre is the oldest professional children's theatre in the nation, and since 1931 NCT has introduced millions of kids and adults to the magic of live theatre. For over seven decades, the Children's Theatre has evolved to best serve Middle Tennessee audiences, and in fall 2004 TIME Magazine ranked NCT as one of the top five children's theatre's in the nation. For over seven decades, Nashville Children's Theatre has been committed to Middle Tennessee's kids and families, and NCT's mission statement reflects the Theatre's commitment to substantive programming for intergenerational audiences:

Nashville Children's Theatre is an ensemble of professional artists who bring unique vision and compelling voice to the creation of meaningful theatre for Nashville and Middle Tennessee audiences. We strive to make the imaginative celebration of our hopes, struggles and joys a vital part of the shared experience for young people, families, and our community.

The Junior League of Nashville founded the Children's Theatre in 1931, and through the years the company has evolved into the fully-professional, award-winning, nationally respected theatre organization it is today. Each year the Theatre produces an average of five professional productions for audiences ranging from pre-school to adult – compelling, substantive, and engaging plays that showcase superior production values and powerful performances. Every NCT production is brought to life by a team of professional actors, designers, and stage technicians drawn from the finest professional theatre artists in the region, and the Theatre is managed by a team of artists and administrators who share a common commitment to arts education and theatre for young people and adults.

The average NCT season spans 34 weeks and features over 150 performances for both school groups and family audiences. Approximately 50,000 schoolchildren visit Nashville Children's Theatre each year at part of the Theatre's School Performance Series, and an additional 5,000 kids and adults attend NCT's Weekend Family Series performances. Accessibility is a guiding principle behind Nashville Children's Theatre, and the Theatre offers affordably-priced school and weekend tickets to ensure that students and families from throughout the region's diverse cultural and socio-economic communities can benefit from NCT's programming.

The Children's Theatre's year-round arts education programming both complements and augments NCT's regular season of performances, and the Theatre's education initiatives provide hands-on experiences that develop children's creativity and encourage a life-long interest in the arts. NCT's year-round theatre academy has expanded significantly in recent seasons, and each Saturday during the academic year NCT now hosts a variety of theatre classes and drama workshops; our summer drama camps have also grown to include classes for children from three to eighteen as well as intensive two-week training programs for advanced students. At the same time, NCT continues to offer teacher training and professional development programs in order to provide better arts education opportunities for area youth. Altogether Nashville Children's Theatre serves over 60,000 children and adults annually, and each year NCT provides some 7,000 free and discounted tickets and camp scholarships for young people enrolled in public schools throughout Nashville and Middle Tennessee.

Nashville Children's Theatre: FY05 Major Programs and Services

School Performance Series

Nashville Children's Theatre's annual School Performance Series is NCT's central outreach program. Throughout its 73-year history, the Children's Theatre has developed an on-going partnership with the schools and educators that serve Middle Tennessee young people. In NCT's 2004-05 season, the Theatre offered 124 weekday matinees as part of the School Performance Series, and these weekday performances – held at 10:00 am and 11:30 am – were identical to those offered to the general public. Attendance at these

NCT performances was complemented by classroom discussions, arts activities, and cross-curricular assignments outlined in NCT curriculum guides. The Children's Theatre's Education Director and trained teaching artists also offered in-school workshops and facilitated post-performance discussions with the cast and artistic team. Students benefited from active involvement with Nashville Children's Theatre through the following:

- NCT's FY05 programming directly supported Tennessee's language arts curriculum framework, and the Children's Theatre's curriculum guides for each production provided a series of activities that directly corresponded to state goals for reading and writing. Each NCT production also related to a variety of cross-curricular subjects, and these learning opportunities were also outlined in the Children's Theatre's user-friendly curriculum guides.
- Nashville Children's Theatre's professional performances and related arts education programs also promoted the development of imagination and creativity, which nurtured critical thinking and creative problem-solving skills. NCT productions also helped teachers engage students' multiple intelligences, and productions like The Tempest and Bambi: A Life in the Woods ignited student interest in literature, history, social studies and other curricular subjects.
- Regular attendance at Nashville Children's Theatre performances and participation in NCT's multi-layered education programs was designed to motivate and empower young people to utilize Tennessee's cultural resources in the future. At Nashville Children's Theatre, schoolchildren developed a sense of community involvement through the shared theatre experience and exchange of ideas.

NCT's FY05 School Performance Series attracted a true cross-section of students from throughout Nashville and Middle Tennessee – children from both public and private elementary and middle schools, as well as home-schooled students. Teachers, parents, and school administrators embrace NCT's school programming, as demonstrated by the following FY05 statistics:

- 47,713 students and teachers from 215 area schools attend NCT weekday matinees during the 2004-05 season.
- 63% of the Children's Theatre's FY05 school audiences attended public schools, and NCT's performances and hands-on drama workshops provided substantive, high-quality arts education opportunities for students who otherwise would not have access to arts programming as part of the public school education.
- 22,897 Metro Nashville public school students benefited from NCT's FY05 School Performance Series, and 64% of all Metro elementary and middle schools used NCT productions to expand their classroom learning last year.
- The average paid ticket price for tickets to NCT's school performances was $4.97 in FY05, but the actual costs associated with this program totaled over $650,000. The Children's Theatre's annual grants and fundraising efforts supported this broad-based program and enabled NCT to offer affordable tickets to all schools and free tickets to disadvantaged students from public schools.

Weekend Family Performance Series

Nashville Children's Theatre believes that a visit to the Theatre can offer engaging, quality family entertainment that promotes thoughtful, meaningful interaction between kids and adults. Through the FY05 Weekend Family Performance Series, NCT served as a friendly and accessible cultural center that drew together families and neighbors from throughout Nashville's diverse communities. Sold-out houses and added performances have become a hallmark of NCT's family series, and the Children's Theatre has carefully cultivated a friendly, accessible weekend atmosphere. When kids and families arrive at the Theatre on the weekend, they are greeted by NCT's full-time professional staff, and after the show the cast joins kids and parents in the lobby to sign autographs, take pictures, and answer questions about the production. The theatregoers' energy and enthusiasm reaffirms the importance and popularity of the Children's Theatre's Weekend Family Performance Series, which recorded these statistics for the 2004-05 season:

- 5,365 kids and adults visited NCT for the Theatre's FY05 Weekend Family performances.
- The Children's Theatre's 2004-05 season brochure featured 18 Weekend Family performances, and early demand for tickets prompted NCT to add two additional performances to accommodate theatergoers.
- Average paid ticket price for NCT's weekend performances during FY04 was $7.02 – an unbelievable bargain for live theatre and comparably-priced to movie theatre tickets and other family entertainment choices.

All of NCT's FY05 marketing and promotion efforts for the Weekend Family Performances were designed to attract diverse audiences and increase the Theatre's visibility in key markets and underserved communities. NCT's modest advertising budget was also used to publicize NCT productions in Nashville/Williamson County Parent Magazine, and selected productions were also promoted in the Nashville Scene and The Tennessean, and all shows were listed in community calendars and PSA's. At the same time, the Children's Theatre continued its marketing and cross-promotional programs with related businesses such as Davis-Kidd Booksellers.

NCT has worked aggressively to expand its group sales for weekend performances, and the Theatre has developed a successful partnership with the Girl Scouts that combines group sales and theatre badge workshops. NCT also offered sign-interpreted public performances for shows throughout the season, and these performances were publicized through the Theatre's season brochure, NCT press releases, and outreach to organizations serving the deaf community.

2004-05 Regional Touring Program

NCT began touring in the 1994-95 season when the Theatre first partnered with Tennessee Performing Arts Center's Humanities Outreach Tennessee program to tour to Bristol, Harriman, and Union City, Tennessee. In spring 1997, the Children's Theatre developed its own Regional Touring Program to better serve schools throughout Middle Tennessee who are unable to travel to Nashville to see performances at NCT. Over the last eight years, NCT's annual regional tour has become a tradition for both the Children's Theatre and schools throughout the region. For one day each year, rural schools are transformed into professional theatres – complete with sets, sound, costumes, and a team of Tennessee's finest professional actors – and students are instantly filled with wonder and excitement as they walk into "their" theatre.

Today, Nashville Children's Theatre's regional tour is a model program that combines engaging productions, finely-tuned touring logistics, extensive ticket subsidy efforts, in-school arts education components, and highly effective marketing and school outreach. Once again, the Children's Theatre's quality, professional productions form the cornerstone of the program, and – like NCT's School Performance Series – all schools participating in the Regional Touring Program receive curriculum guides for the featured NCT production. NCT's Education Director also communicates directly with teachers and administrators to help facilitate classroom lessons.

The Children's Theatre's established relationships with school administrators throughout Middle Tennessee provide the foundation needed to best serve students in outlying areas. Working together, we give students access to a professional theatre production and shared cultural experience. Children across the mid-state region – many of whom would not otherwise have access to the performing arts – travel to different worlds, explore new issues and ideas, and join in magical adventures through theatre. Through NCT's regional touring program, these rural students will group up seeing a new and exciting professional theatre production every year. In FY05, NCT offered a two-week tour that served schools in rural Middle Tennessee counties. The Children's Theatre's touring performances served 3,112 schoolchildren, and through this program Nashville Children's Theatre continued moving one step closer to fulfilling its mission to bring meaningful professional theatre to audiences throughout Nashville and Middle Tennessee.

Year-Round Drama Classes and Theatre Training

At Nashville Children's Theatre, one of our guiding principles is that children and adults of all ages benefit from hands-on opportunities to develop their self-expression, personal creativity, and artistic talents. NCT's hands-on education programs are developed by the Theatre's Director of Education and Outreach, and over the last four seasons these year-round classes and summer camps have expanded to serve young people from ages three to eighteen. NCT's "Theatre for Threes" and "KinderDrama" classes provide opportunities for toddlers – together with their parents – to develop their interpersonal skills and imaginations. NCT's new Young Artist Company also provides teenagers to perform at community centers and other venues throughout Nashville; enrollment in the Children's Theatre's flagship Young Artist Company is by audition only, and auditions are scheduled regularly throughout the year.

During the academic year, NCT offers both after-school and Saturday morning drama classes. Throughout the summer months, the Theatre has week-long drama camps that can be taken individually or sequentially. The Children's Theatre also provides before and after-care to best serve working parents. During the 2004-05 season, 619 young people enrolled in NCT's drama classes and theatre camps, and the Children's Theatre sustained its commitment to make these programs affordable for families throughout the metro Nashville area. FY05 tuition for NCT's after-school and summer workshops ranged from $40 to $345, and NCT family subscribers received a 10% discount on all class tuition.
